FABRIQUÉ EN FRANCE

MATERIALS

COTTON
The cotton is a plant fibre. This fibre is usually transformed into a yarn which can be woven to make fabrics.

JERSEY COTTON
The jersey cotton is a fine knit fabric made from either cotton or synthetic fibres. It's a light, soft fabric that is easy to print.

COMBED COTTON
A cotton that has been "combed" a number of times to make it purer. Combing removes shorter fibres and impurities. This results in a softer, more supple fabric.

SEMI COMBED COTTON
A cotton which has only been combed once.

1X1 RIB COTTON
Knitted in a specific way to obtain a stretch fabric.

INTERLOCK COTTON
Knitted in a specific way to make the garment extremely soft to touch.

RECYCLED COTTON
A recycled cotton is an alternative to conventional cotton. It is made from clothes collected by organisations. Clothes that are not in good enough condition to be offered as second hand can then follow a recycling path. They will be sorted by colour and material and then shredded, defibered and spun into fabric and finally into new clothes.

SLUB
Yarn varies in thickness, giving the stitches an irregular aspect.

POLYESTER
The polyester is used primarily to make synthetic textile fibres, often in combination with other fibres, such as cotton and wool. Easy-care synthetic yarn resistant to heat and creasing.

RECYCLED POLYESTER
The polyester can be recycled from textile production scraps, used clothes, but also from plastic bottles.

ELASTANE or SPANDEX
Very stretchy, sturdy yarn. Used to make stretch fabrics that allow freedom of movement and keep their shape.

NYLON
The nylon is a member of the polyamide family. It is a sturdy, supple, easy-care, synthetic yarn.

PIQUÉ KNIT
Honeycomb structure, used primarily for polo shirts.

COATING
Fabric surface treatment to improve impermeability (PVC, PU, acrylic, etc.).

MEMBRANE
Film bonded to a fabric to make it waterproof. Microporous membrane let water vapour through (perspiration).

SOFTSHELL
2 or 3 layer fabric including a waterproof and breathable membrane.

HEATHER COLOURS
Heather shades (heather grey, ash, sport grey, heather) are always made from a polyester-cotton mix.

EME
This is the abbreviation for elastomultiester. It's an elastic polyester, with more lasting elasticity and made from a fibre that is more resistant to chemicals.
